Judy Dworin Performance Project, based in Hartford, CT will present excerpts of their upcoming premiere of Brave in a New World. Brave presents the authentic experiences of incarceration and the challenges of coming home from prison in a unique melding of dance, narrative, and song. The piece conjures images of confinement and separation, hurdles and bridges, shadows of the past looming over the present, and the strength and courage of children affected by incarceration as well as their loved ones who have served their time. This work features women who have re-entered society from York Correctional Institution with the professional Ensemble of the Judy Dworin Performance Project and the voices of children who have parents in prison.
